

A Souvenir of Musical Toronto (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from A Souvenir of Musical Toronto
The publication of the first edition of Musical Toronto (in the early part of 1897) was entered into with a certain amount of diffidence. It was a new departure, and there was no certainty as to how it would be received, either by the profession or the public. So gratifying was its reception, however, that it was decided to repeat it with additions and corrections from time to time. It forms a reference book of a decidedly unique character for those who desire to engage musical talent of any description. It also forms a very interesting table book for the drawing-room or library, and is so used in thousands of homes from Halifax to Vancouver. A few words from the editor may not be amiss as to the object, scope and arrangement of this little book. The object is two-fold. First, it is intended as a compliment to the members of the musical profession. There is very little that is beautiful in the every-day life of the present age, but to that little music and musicians contribute far more than their share. Again, it was felt that the thousands of musicians or musical people scattered over the Dominion, who had received their musical education here, would hail with pleasure a souvenir of this character, which would present at a glance portraits of the artists under whom they had studied, and pictures of buildings and institutions rendered dear to them through long and affectionate association. The demand for copies has proved that he was right in this assumption. About the Publisher
