

The Purple Rift (Part One)

At the start of the 22nd century, a race of godlike beings--the Elar--awaken after countless eons of slumber, and decide the purpose of their existence is to subdue all other life forms. On Earth, humankind has seemingly evolved into one peaceful, prosperous society--but in fact, it is only the calm before the storm. For God and the Devil are actually real, and have begun appointing human agents to oppose each other with unprecedented powers. And out in space, a mysterious rift has suddenly appeared, and soon alien spaceships emerge from it to head straight for Earth. With the aliens is one of the Elar, calling himself Eli, whose agenda is entirely unknown, for it seems he has turned renegade against his brethren. Yet there are even bigger issues to consider than the Earth becoming a battleground of gods. The Purple Rift is a wound in the cosmos which has begun to break down the dimensional integrity of all space and time. If it is not mended, soon there will be chaos beyond imagining; in fact, even life and death may cease to have meaning. The only hope for salvation rests with several young men and women who learn they have the unique, awesome ability to channel Spiritual Energy, also known as the Blood of the Universe. With this power, they must find a way to close the Purple Rift, thus restoring balance. There is just one problem: as long as the Rift exists, the Channellers are prevented from being able to control their power...
